Dear Andrew: We have been deluged with compliments about our roto edition. Your mama went to the farm Wednesday. I have been taking castor oil. They have been sending a good many to the army. I have kept Horn and Greenfield out of devilment recently. The overseer appreciated your card. P. S. He has now gone yet.

Tillman Martin, according to a telegram received by his wife, is seriously ill at Pascagoula where he was working in the ship yards. No details available. The Martins live at Holcomb.

Sergeant Hervey B. Perry, an Aerial Gunner of the Army Air Force, now stationed in Alaska, visited his brother, Hon. Marshall Perry, a few days recently.

I noted a Captain and a First Lieutenant in town Monday with a heavy army truck on which they loaded the extremely heavy load of one 35 cent mop. Counting the time of the officers and the cost of the mileage, the mop cost the government no less than $5.00, but that's war.

Dear Whyte, Jr. I received the fine calander, luciously illustrated. I could hardly get it away from Tommie Rose.

Just heard a lady on the radio say that she felt half-married already. what did she mean mr top

Mr. Wade Stoker, of Greenwood, and Winona, spent the week-end in Grenada.

We still have a supply of copies of this edition, and are going to give a copy free to each new subscriber.

Rob Brown, big oil and grease man of Louisville, recently honored the GCW with a call.

Dear Mrs. P. E. Smith: we received the renewal all right, and your expiration date will be changed when we can get to revising our mailing list.

With the high price of licker and the difficulty of transportation, a lot of people are leading better lives than formerly.

Atnt they sweet.

Did we mention that A. L. McIlvaine was a new subscriber? If we have not, here is the mention, and thanks with the mention.

If I had a horse I would be able to go somewhere if I had a saddle or a buggy.

What happened to the paper saving campaign and the waste fat saving campaign? We printed some stuff for Grenada Farms that indicated that it was going to do something about the fat business.

Cousin Groce Carver, of Holcomb, was a recent visitor to Grenada.

If he has nothing on his sleeve he is a Private, the man who can pass the buck no further.

Miss Madie Moore, of Elliott, has received a subscription as a Christmas present from Mrs. T. H. Moore, and the latter, now living at Kenner, Louisiana, has "taken out" a subscription in her own name. Thanks, Mrs. Moore.

Derned if we are not getting more subscriptions than we know what to do with.

Frances Marascalco must have averted a storm the other day when she threw about a pound of salt into the street. Anyway, we did not have a storm.

What's good for a cold? I have had one for three week. Is sassafrass tea any good?

Much obliged to Ed Underwood for a belated, but appreciated Christmas present, a pair of socks. That makes three whole pairs I have now.

Mr. W. F. Martin, who has observed Grenada for many, many years—having served a term as Sheriff—was amazed that the sobriety of the people during the Christmas season was so pronounced.

You folks who asked us to put aside copies of the Special Edition are urged to come by and get them.

You folks who furnished your own pictures for the roto section are urged to come by and get them.

April 1st, in my opinion, is time enough for candidatets to announce. We have a war going on, and there's no use in folks getting hot and bothered about politics too far ahead. I note that candidates are already announcing n Calhoun County—too early.

Ensign John Rundle, Jr. Died Wednesday Night

As his parents were speeding to the U. S. Marine Hospital in New York where he was a patient, Ensign John Rundle, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. John Rundle, of Grenada, died about 11 o'clock p. m. Wednesday, January 13, 1943. It is understood that he died of natural causes and not from wounds.

Mr. Rundle was notified Wednesday of the serious illness of his son. Carried to Memphis by Mr. G. W. Patty, Mr. Rundle and his wife boarded a plane for New York, but arrived too late.

Further details are not available but, in the meantime, the whole community, including this newspaper, bows its head in sorrow for the Rundles in the loss of their only son.

Milton Morgan Dies Of Injuries

Mr. Milton Morgan, son of Mrs. Mollie Dubard Morgan, of Memphis, died from injuries received in a fall while on duty on a construction job in Indianapolis, on January 7, 1943.

Mr. Morgan, a young man of sterling worth and ability, was with the engineering firm in charge of plans of construction and his death comes as a great shock to his family and friends. He is a grandson of the late Mr. and Mrs. Marcellus Dubard, of Grenada county.

Interment was held in Memphis on Friday, January 8.

Relatives from Grenada to attend the funeral were Mr. and Mrs. Vassar Dubard, Mr. David Dubard and Mrs. B. J. Anderson. Also in attendance at the funeral were, Major and Mrs. Horton Dubard of New Orleans.

Grenada County Furnishes Three Soldiers of The Sea

Billie James, son of Mr. and Mrs. Guy James, Jack Bickerstaff, son of Mrs. Pearl Bickerstaff of Grenada and John Henley, son of Mrs. John Henley of this county, recently were accepted for service in the United States Marine Corps and have been sent to San Diego for eight weeks' intensive training.

Good luck, boys.

Petition Postpones Proposed Charter Amendment

A petition containing nearly 300 names of people who asked for an election upon the proposal to change the City Charter so as to permit the appointment by the Council of the Marshal and City Clerk, as well as all other offirers and employees, was filed with the City Council Monday of this week and this, at least postponed the incorporation of this change in the City's fundamental law.

The Council referred this petition to the Election Commission of the City, whose duty it will be to determine how many of the signers were qualified voters, and to determine also the exact number of qualified voters in the City of Grenada, so that it can further be determined whether the petition contained the necessary 20 percent of qualified voters. If the petition does contain 20 percent of the qualified voters, an election will have to be called to permitt the people to vote on the question; if not, the change is automatically incorporated into the Charter.

I am 100 percent in favor of the proposed "pay as you earn" plan of raising revenue for the notional government. It is sound and logical, and will work better than the present system. If it was necessary to do so to pay for this war as we go along, I would favor a ten percent sales tax.

Those Completing Training Have War Jobs Waiting

Men and women completing coures offered by the Aircraft Sheetmetal and Riveting and Machine Shop, operated through the vocational deartment of Grenada High School, are being placed in local and nearby war industries.

At the present time vacancies exist in both schools for both men and women. Anyone sixteen years of age or older are eligible to attend. Young men expecting to be inducted into military service may secure training that will aid them in securing rapid promotions when they enter service.

Training may be completed in from four to ten weeks in aircraft work, depending upon how advanced the student goes into the work. Machine shop training requires ten to fourteen weeks to complete.

Application should be made through the U. S. Employment Service at Grenada or in your own locality. Interested eprsons are permitted to go to either of the schools and talks with the instructors if they so desire. The aircraft shop is located on First Street, the machine shop on Commerce at Biddy's Welding Shop.

Camp McCain News

Perhaps this should be called "Contractor's Column" this week, for we're going to begin with a news item about those ever-active and obliging members of the construction force, neither fish nor fowl, neither Architect-Engineers, nor U. S. Government workers—the Contractors.

All that build-up is to tell you about the grand birthday party that Jack Harris, host and concrete mar de luxe, gave his Mamie last Thursday night over at Lusco's in Greenwood. (Last two words are superfluous, aren't they?) Well, about three cars of guests went over early in the evening, and came back late in the morning . . . but we're getting ahead of our story. Mamie was one of the most beautiful women ever honored with a birthday party, and Jack one of the most charming honorees.

All right, so you want to know the details . . . Jimmie E. was the Master of Ceremonies and told the jokes, Mrs. Youngblood played a featured role as the "Lady in Red"; Sila Green danced everyone down but Leona . . . Mrs. Wade sang her solo about the gallant Navy lads; Dale S. actually had a date with a single girl; and we got in at four o'clock.

Still talking about the contractors, we're glad to announce that Jake Rubins has nearly recovered from his flu. He was partying again Tuesday night in the country.

Al Villance is back in Pensacola again, attending to his job there. But that's really not news any more, as he's just commuting from Mississippi to Alabam' lately.

The Pews are gone agin, after the three week vacation in Hot Springs this Christmas. This time it's Atlanta, their home. They are planning to return sometime next week.

Of course you've all seem the Rotogravure section of the GCW that was issued last week, and noticed the splendid cooperatoin of the contractors who did their part along with everyone else. Also noticed the fine pictures of them, too.

So with those words we'll spik over to the U. S. Government.

The whole camp and the GCW extends their sincerest sympathy to Miss Grace Shumaker, who received official notice this Tuesday that her older brother, David, had been reported killed in action in Western Europe. His death took place on November 22 of the past year. He was in the Signal Corps.

Capt.. Trice has been ill this week with the flu. Some say that he sank too deep into that Mississippi mud.

Oh, by the way, we do have a surprise for you. ater-every-nighter Squatty Hall actually went to bed at eight o'clock Monday night of this week. We add that he made up for it on Tuesday night.

This is the news calculated to chill you. Bessir H. Ray and Myrtle Kelly are "fixin" to go to Alaska ao work on Arctic switchboards. Their plans aren't quite definite as yet, for the Eskimos seem to be wtihholding their approval, but the excitement is still mounting in the front office.

Another rumor, rather well sustantiated by eyed witnesses, is that three carloads of officers arrived at Camp on Monday. Most of them are older and higher ranking ones, too.

Lt. Colonel Lancefield of the Judge Advocate Department was here this Tuesday and Wednesday from Atlanta, Ga. He was with a large party who were doing a little inspecting at camp.

Now to combine a little town gossip with camp. We hear that Mary Liz Horton is having a terrible time massing her exams because she has a date wtih different Lieutenants every night.

And is it true about the engagement of Jackie Lane and her Lieutenant. And when is the definite date?

On the bus last week-end, a First Sergeant sat next to us. He was pointing out to his newly arrived wife the wonders of the camp, and of the neighboring countryside. Finally they got to Duck Hill, and he announced in a very self-satisfied tone . . "And this is where I finally found a room." She was stil silent.

Winona Entertains Military Personnel

A most delightful evening of entertainment was enjoyed by the Commanding Officer of Camp McCain and his staff and some thirty-eight officers of the 87th Division, as the guests of Mayor Rupert Ringold and the City of Winona, Mississippi, Friday night, January 8, 1943.

With genuine Southern hospitality the citizens of Winona opened the gates of their little city and tied a knot of friendship with the officers of Camp McCain that shall never be forgotten.

Refreshments and an excellent supper of Bar-B-Que chicken, prepared only as a Southern epicure knows how, was highly enjoyed. Mayor Ringold acted as Master of Ceremonies and held the attention of his guests, with a brilliant repetoire of witticisms and welcome that is still so true today of Southern Gentlemen.

THROUGH A WOMAN'S EYE

By Mrs. W. W. Whitaker

With our nation in a war for the "survival of the fittest", with our soldiers, aviators, sailors, both of the Navy and Merchant Marine fighting and dying, doesn't it seem disgraceful and alarmnig to read about waste of food stuff?

There is a scandal being aired now concerning the waste at the Jap camp in Arkansas and all of us know that we waste food at our homes by cooking too much of several foods for main course and dessert but it takes the big shots in Washington to show by comparison to themselves what frugal people we ordinary folks are.

Read what Congressman Clare E. Hoffman, of Michigan had to say concerning a dinner party in honor of Harry Hopkins' bride. "Mr. Speaker, the Belshazzarlike $40 a-plate dinner, given to entertain the bride of Harry Hopkins, the irresponsible spender of taxpayers' money, at which 90 New Deal officials feasted, drank and danced, is typical of the New Deal attitude towards the war.

While our men are fighting and dying the New Dealers dine, dance, drink wine and make merry. Before the grass has grown on the graves of the young men who have died to preserve this Nation, before some of their nearest relatives have received word of their death, these irresponsible merry makers in the Nation's capitol show a callousness towards the Nation's problems that was not exceeded by that of Nero himself. . . . There were only 35 items on the menu, which indicated that rationing in its severest form has not yet reached official Washington . . . The party itself, which, for the 60 guests, is reported to have cost $3,000, is not vitally important, but as a symbol of New Deal indifference to the fate of the country, as a symbol of waste and extravagance, of thoughtlessness, it is astounding . . . . The theaters, the dance halls and the places which dispense liquor and cater to entertainment cannot take care of the more than capacity crowds. . . . While the New Dealers play politics, while they keep in force domestic policies which some figure are doubling the cost of the war, while they spend and waste and waste and spend, while the crowds in Washington eat and drink and dance and pat each other on the back, and while official Washington turns over to the representatives of other nations billions of dollars of the taxpayers money, our own people, who are the foundation rock upon which the whole world is now depending for the preservation of civilization, are not only made to suffer and to sacrifice but are hindered in their efforts ao maintain the super structure. Congressman Hoffman sees in the November election the country's reaction to the New Deal and suggest that to the New Dealers it is the same as the handwriting on the wall as read by Belshazzar as he sat in his banquet hall. The interpretation of that message was "God hath numbered the kingdom, and finished it. Thou art weighed in the balance and are found wanting"

New Books At Service Club, Camp McCain

The new books which have arrived at the Service Clubs of Camp McCain, Mississippi, the new home of the 87th Infantry Division, are a cross section of the reading habit of the American public. The choice of books at this early date are varied and a soldier can select any volume which his individual taste may dictate and peruse it at his leisure. This creates a healthy mind open to clear thinking and opposed to those tyrants who would pattern a nation's reading habit to coincide with their own schemes.

A typical Service Club Library which the men of the 87th Infantry Division and other camp personnel may use is the one located in Service Club No. 2. Many books have already arrived and more are expected soon. Ahe list of books covers a tremendous range of subjects from text books on higher mathematics to music books and poetry and also a very fine collection of books on American history and reference subjects. Sanburg's masterpiece on the life of Abraham Lincoln rounds out a choice collection of biographies. For those who are interested in fiction a fine group of novels, with brightly colored jackts, line the shelves. The titles read like a list of best sellers written and published during the past two years.

Librarian of the No. 2 library is Miss Laura Jones, of Canton, Mississippi. Miss Jones is a graduate of Louisiana State University and was the only woman at her school to receive the degree of Master of Science in Library Science.

Used Silk Stocking Drive

Women of Grenada county are urged to search everywhere at home for their old silk and nylon stockings and after laundrying them, bring them to the bin at Isenberg's Dry Goods Store on the west side of the square.

The thread in these seemingly useless dainty hose is very useful, especially since our silk supply has been cut off by war and American women are asked to contribute these worn hose to be utilized in the manufacture of powder bags, parachutes and other war needs.

Remember that our old hose will be used by the government in our All out for Victory drive to end the war in 1943, and if you do not cooperate, you may aid our enemies. So bring the old hose to Isenberg's stocking bin.

MEN OF THE 87th

"The results of your efforts will be revealed on some distant foreign soil, but the foundation for those victories which are to come will be laid, and the Division will be built, on the drill fields of Camp McCain."

With these well chosen words and finely phrased sentences, delivered on Activation Day, December 22, Major General P. W. Clarkson, commanding officer of the 87th Infantry Division, placed his finger on the vital attribute of a successful army—training!

The training of a unit is primarily accomplished in the vicinity of its own camp. The habits of good soldering and sound military discipline are inculcated into the men during their early Army days. They will carry into battle the stock and supply of information they absorbed during their training. The spirit and enthusiasm to engage the enemy are traits instilled as the ingredients of their basic training course.

When these men finally go into battle, they will be trained to a high degree of proficiency in the art of aggressive combat. Strenuous training and vigorous exercising are the primary requisites to accomplish this purpose.

As the commanding officer of the 87th Infantry Division, General Clarkson combines a professional interest with a personal regard for his men and the training they receive and in the manner in which they respond to that training. Into his capable hands fall the threads which weave together the intricate details of a division. General Clarkson is a man well chosen for the job before him. He is a soldier's soldier and a man imbued with exceptional qualities of leadership.

General Clarkson comes to the 87th from Camp White, Oregon, where he served as Assistant Division Commander with the 91st Infantry Division. His accomplishments with that unit are a matter of record; the opinions of the men with whom he associated see living graphic testimonies of his qualifications and personal ability to guide and command tre 87th Infantry Division.

During his years of service, General Clarkson has become noted fer his code. "If the men can do it, I'll do it first!" A rugged officer who is more at home "in the field," the General is most familiar to his men as the man always in the midst of the most work. An example of a first-class fighting man, General Clarkson is a source of great pride and a man to be emulated by the officers and men of his organization.

Born in the Lone Star State of Texas, General is a graduate of Texas A. and M. He entered the service just before the last war and served with destinction in World War 1 with the 1st Division.

General Clarkson's military education has been extensive. He has spent five years in military schools—Signal School, Chemistry and Electricity Schools, Infantry Schools, Command and General Star School, Army War College, Signal Company Officers' School and Chemical Warfare Service Officers' Course.

"I have faith in all of you," stated General Clarkson to the members of his cadre, "The traditions and customs of the old 87th Division have not been dimmed by time. To you men of the cadre has fallen the grave responsibility and the mission of perpetuating those characteristics." The men of the 87th have faith in their Commanding General and confidence in their own ability to carry out their mission. Faith, ability and good leadership are a combination that bows to no obstacles and one that will not relax its vigilance until truth and justice have returned to the world.

Jack Gresham, who has been laid up for about three months, called up and spoke very kindly of our efforts. Thank, Jack. Take it easy for a while.

Income Stabilized By Crop Insurance

Greater Expenditures Involved During War

Planting war crops means added expenditures and business risks. Farmers must buy new equipment and use more fertilizers and other materials. All are scarce.

When cotton or wheat crops are insured up to 50 or 75 per cent of average yields, farmers are in a better position to plan production of all the commodities they produce. With some return on wheat or cotton crops certain, farmers can afford to make more acres available for war production.

Thus crop insurance stabilizes income, helps the grower to meet his obligations, and helps provide for financing crops essential to winning the war.

Many wheat and cotton growers planted vital war crops on part of their land for the first time last year—and did it with an assured income from their regular money crops.

Through the Federal Crop Insurance corporation, they were insured against failure of their cotton or wheat crops from such hazards as insects, drouth, flood, fire, hail, plant disease, winter-kill and wind.

For the first time, the cotton crop was insured in 1942. Here, bales are stored in a field near a cotton compress company at Memphis, Tenn.

Participation in the wheat insurance program has increased each year for the past three years. In 1941, 421,133 contracts were written with wheat growers.

The cotton crop is being insured again this year. Because the nation has had cotton surpluses in the past, it is not generally recognized that crop losses cost growers an average of 460 million dollars annually. Insurance of the 1942 cotton crop on the same basis as the wheat crop will mean much to the 13 million who depend directly on cotton.

Insured growers pay premiums based on their crop loss experience. A commodity note embodied in the three-year contract guarantees the premium will be paid. Payments may be made in either cash or the commodity. If an annual installment is not paid, the equivalent may be deducted from the indemnity if there is one or from any payment due the farmer for participation in the national farm program or proceeds of any loan he obtains under loan programs administered by the secretary of agriculture.

Indemnities for crop losses are paid with a certificate of indemnity. This is convertible into cash or the actual commodity, if it is available, or used to obtain a commodity loan if loans are available.

As is the case with other phases of the farm program, the crop insurance program is administered by the state and county AAA committeemen. These committees write applications, adjust losses, collect premiums, measure acreages and handle establishment of yields and rates for individual farms.

1942 Milk Production

Keeping farm pastures at a high productive rate to meet the war-time demands of Uncle Sam's 26 million milk cow army requires a soil conservation program that builds up fertility and provides plant foods that will assure a good stand of legumes and grasses, an agricultural bulletin points out. In such a program, the use of fertilizer containing necessary phosphorus and potash plays an important part. "In 1942 alone," the bulletin says, "milk production totaled 123 billion pounds for our fighting forces, our allies and civilian population."

Best Milk Bucket

Where hand-milking is done, a hooded or small top milk bucket is preferred. This type of bucket will exclude about 50 per cent of the number of bacteria which usually get into the milk during the milking process. The strainer should be seamless and constructed to use standard filter discs. Milk cans and all other utensils used in handling milk should be of standard construction and free from open seams, say health authorities.

Work of Champion Quilt Maker Is a Challenge to All Sewers

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

QUILTING has been an important part of the fashion scene for many weeks now, with accessories, jackets, coat linings and even skirts made warm as well as attractive by the quilting technique. Home sewers, with a tremendous quantity of quilted fabrics available by the yard, have been having fun turning out their own quilted creations.

Of course, you may not want to tackle anything so ambitious right away, but the quilt illustrated in the above picture gives you an idea of what can be done by one who makes quilting her hobby. An illness which, ten years ago, confined her to her home for many weeks, has brought to Mrs. Bertha Stenge of Chicago national recognition as champion quilt maker.

While she was idle and unable to carry on her usual activities of caring for her home and her flower garden, Mrs. Stenge noticed a Chicago newspaper was promoting a quilt-making contest. She decided to enter the contest, just to get started on a hobby and keep herself occupied.

She did not win a prize in this contest, but the quilt she entered won a prize at a later contest and since that time she has made 20 quilts, all of which have won cash awards and blue ribbons throughout the country.

Mrs. Stenge has won nearly 40 prizes in her ten years of entering contests. She has never sold any of her quilts although she has been requested many times to place a sales price on one or another of them. She says she cannot evaluate in dollars and cents the six months or more of effort it takes to make a quilt.

Her Bible quilt has won repeated awards in various contests. In this design, she has pictured incidents of the Bible—Moses in the bulrushes, Daniel in the lion's den, Jonah and the whale and others. Still another unusual design is her Family History quilt. From old portraits, Mrs. Stenge worked into the design, pictures of her father and mother, herself as she started to school, her husband and her daughters, as well as incidents of her married life. In the above illustration Mrs. Stenge is displaying a portion of the Family History quilt and the original photographs. The insets show other motifs from Mrs. Stenge's quilts.

Her top honor up to this year was $750 won at the New York World's fair. Recently, she won the regional contest of $100 and the sweepstakes prize of $1,000 in a national needlework contest conducted by Woman's Day magazine.

Mrs. Stenge has won state prizes in Kentucky, home of the appliqued quilt and where fine quilt making is taken as a matter of course. She has won top honors in state, county and city contests in Illinois and just to prove she has abilities in other directions, one year at the Cook County fair she won three baking prizes as well as four quilt prizes.

The quilt which won her the sweepstakes prize in the Woman's Day contest was a Victory quilt, an original design. It has a shield outlined in blue and appliqued with white stars around an American eagle in blue, with the Liberty Bell in blue above it. Red V's are placed at each corner with the Victory sign —three dots and a dash—beside each V. Blue stars are used as a border around the quilt.

An alphabet quilt for a child's bed is another consistent prize winner. And now she is working on a "quilt of quilts." This will display miniature replicas of standard and famous quilt patterns.

Mrs. Stenge is a graduate of the University of California, where she majored in art. Her husband is an attorney. They have three daughters and two grand-daughters.

Expertly Styled

This season's fur coats are noted for their versatile styling. The flatter furs are taking on the suave lines of tailored cloth and the fetching details that give interest to fabric handling are being matched in fur technique. In the high-styled ocelot coat here shown this point of expert styling is clearly demonstrated. The rolled collar, facing, pockets and tie-fastening, which is drawn through slits at the side and tied in front (leaving the back loose), give a very youthful effect.

Fringe-Trimmed

In the new collections many charming print frocks are seen that are trimmed with fringe. In the newest technique the fringe is arranged in two tiers on the skirt.

Feature War Stamp Prints for Spring

Prints will have an exciting story to tell, judging from advance showings. Perhaps the most unique and outstanding at this stage of the game is the new war-stamp print. It has boutonnieres of war stamps spaced all over the background. A dress made of this print with tie-fastenings of self fabric is very new looking and, being prettily colored, is exceedingly attractive.

Cross-stitch prints for children's dresses are something to consider when buying wash materials for home sewing. You'll love these prints and they authentically reproduce colorful cross-stitch embroidery effects.

Border prints are being used most intriguingly, sometimes with flowers massed at the waistline or along one side fastenings that extend from neck to hemline. The rest of the gown is made of the simple far-spaced little design.

Satin Sports Frocks Make Debut in Spring Showings

Here's the latest! It's the charming little sports frocks that have just made their debut in the early spring showings. Fashioned of lustrous cotton-and-rayon slipper satin they are in the most delectable pastels you can ever imagine.

Their sophistication is in the strict simplicity observed in their styling. Some button with the new pottery buttons in the same shade as the satin. Others indulge in self-fabric ties all the way down the front or side fastening.

You can get these adorable dresses in such ravishing shades as copper pink, aqua, ice blue. For winter up north they look charming under fur coats, and they will be delightfully wearable later on as sports frocks.

JESUS WINNING SOULS

LESSON TEXT—John 4:27-42.

GOLDEN TEXT—He that reapeth receiveth wages, and gathereth fruit unto life eternal.—John 4:36.

Man's need is the same wherever and whoever he may be. The Christ who met the need of the distinguished religious leader Nicodemus did the same for the poor sinful woman of Samaria.

The incident at Jacob's well in Sychar took place when Jesus, leaving Jerusalem because of increasing hindrance to His work, went up to Galilee. Unlike His Jewish brethren, who detoured around the land of the hated "half-breed" Samaritans, He "must needs go through Samaria," for there was a sin-sick soul that needed Him.

Our lesson abounds with instruction regarding soul-winning, both in principle and in practice. We here find Jesus:

I. Winning a Soul-Winner (vv. 27-30).

The faithful and kindly ministry of Christ led the woman to faith in Him as the Messiah. She left her water pot and ran at once into the city to share her new-found joy with everyone she knew.

Since the first expression of spiritual life is testimony, the one who brings a sinner to Christ not only saves a soul, but also wins a worker for Christ. One fears that we often assume that winning men to Christ is enough. We should expect that the new light should shine forth into the darkness.

So we have a two-fold reason for soul-winning; saving a soul from perdition, and setting a life on fire for testimony. It's a great business. Why don't we do more of it?

II. Instructing Soul-Winners (vv. 31-38).

This work of soul-winning requires a sustaining grace which this world cannot give. Jesus by His own example showed His disciples how that strength comes from above.

He who had seated Himself at the well, tired and hungry, to await the return of the disciples with food, had been refreshed in the doing of the Father's will—in reaching this forlorn woman. "The greatest thing that ever occurs in the world is the transformation of a human soul, and the greatest joy anyone can ever have is to act as the divine agent in bringing about such a transformation" (Douglass).

There is another thing these soul-winners needed to learn—even as we need to learn and re-learn it—that the time to win souls is now. How prone the human being is to procrastinate. Tomorrow—next Sunday—next week, we will speak to someone about his spiritual need. Next year we will give more liberally for missions, or for the work of soul-winning in our local church. But "look on the fields." Do you not see "that they are ripe already unto harvest"?

Again, soul-winners need to remember our Lord's words in verses 36-38. Not only the reapers receive the reward, but also those who sow and those who labor in order that the harvest may come. The man who plows is just as important as the one who reaps—perhaps some would say more important. Some of us who are called to be God's plowmen should remember that and be encouraged in our labors.

Like the perfect leader that He was, Jesus did not require of His disciples what He did not do Himself. So we find Him again in the work of evangelism. He practiced what He preached.

III. Practicing Soul-Winning (vv. 39-42).

There is real danger that those of us who have a measure of leadership in the church may be quick to tell others what they ought to do—and not do it ourselves. This is particularly true in this matter of soul-winning. One is apt to write, preach and teach about it, and then neglect to do it.

The disciples had been to town for bread. One wonders whether they had talked to the store-keeper about Christ. Have you?

Jesus did not theorize about it—He really sought men for God. The testimony of the woman He had won sent a host of people out from the city. He spoke to them the word of life and they believed.

This was evidently "group evangelism" as distinguished from the "personal evangelism" which won the woman. They are both important, and belong together. Some are saying that the days of group evangelism are gone. We doubt that, but certainly the days of personal evangelism are always here. Let us be busy about that kind of soul-winning—and God may so bless that we will have a real revival. Are you ready for it?

By GRANTLAND RICE

THE recent death of Jack Doyle, Broadway's famous betting commissioner, cleared up one of the mysteries connected with one of the most famous ring battles ever fought.

Grantland Rice

This was the first meeting between Jim Jeffries and Jim Corbett, won by Jeffries with a knockout in the 23rd round.

In most of the remembered versions of that fight, where Corbett put on the most sensational comeback of all time, the average opinion is that Corbett had the fight packed away by a wide margin until Big Jeff landed the killing punch.

Many who saw the fight had given Corbett 20 of the first 22 rounds.

Doyle's Story

But Jack Doyle had another story to tell. "George Siler refereed this fight," Jack said once, "and for a long time I tried to get him to tell me what his decision would have been if the fight had been only a 20-round contest. For a long time Siler wouldn't say. Then one night he told me confidentially, asking me not to repeat his words, that at the end of 20 rounds he would have given the fight to Jeffries.

"'I'll tell you why,' Siler said. 'Jeffries was the champion. Jeffries was the aggresser. And Jeffries landed the only damaging punches. It was true enough that Corbett landed many more blows. But none of these bothered Jeffries in the slightest. Jeffries only landed a few times solidly, but when he did I could see that he had hurt Corbett considerably. In fact, once or twice he had Corbett in serious trouble. For that reason at the end of 20 rounds I would have left the title with Jeffries, the defender.'"

Corbett's Angle

Before his death, I talked to Corbett about this Jeffries fight on many occasions.

Corbett felt dead sure that he had lost the championship by being overconfident in the 23rd round.

"I had nailed Jeffries at least 10 times to one," he said. "I don't think anyone could hurt Jeffries when he was in shape, as he was then. You remember, Fitz broke both hands on his jaw in their second fight. But I was nailing him all through the fight. I was far in front when he finally caught me coming off the ropes."

I asked Corbett if Jeff had hurt him. "Twice," Corbett said. "Both body punches, and each time I thought he had torn me in two. The Jeffries that fought Jack Johnson wasn't even a ghost of the old Jeffries. He was a fat, half-bald fellow, far out of shape. But the Jeffries I met the second time was the greatest fighter I ever saw. He was not only tough and rugged, game and strong, not only a killing puncher, but he had also become a high-class boxer, which few remember. He had to retire because there was no one else even close. In his prime I don't think that Jack Dempsey or any one else could have hurt him. He would have worn down and beaten them all."

Doyle's Favorite Story

Jack Doyle's favorite story concerns Jimmy Austin, at that time the Yankee third baseman.

Big Ed Walsh was pitching for the White Sox. "Austin was hitting around .309," Jack said. "He hadn't gotten a hit for three days. Walsh was at his peak. The big fellow was mowing them down with his fast ball and his spitter. On that day I happened to be sitting near a bunch of gamblers who found it hard to get down a bet. They were panning Austin as he came to bat. Sitting near those gamblers there was a drunk about half asleep. He suddenly lurched over and said he would like to bet $100 to $500 that Austin would get a triple. This was too good to be true, especially after he had shown his roll. Five of the sure-thing boys took him, $500 to $2,500, and I held the stakes. On the first pitch Austin hit one against the top of the fence for three bases.

"The funny part is, that was the last bet they could get out of the drunk. He crammed his winning $2,500 into his pocket and went back to sleep. His last remark was: 'I only make one bet a game and then I wait for a sure thing that can't miss.'

"I'd say the odds against that bet were 1,000 to 1."

No Wild Odds

Doyle's prices were closer than many others. You'd never find him laying 7 to 1 that Georgia would beat Auburn, Boston College would beat Holy Cross, or that the Chicago Bears would beat the Redskins.

Jack, who came up in football from the days of Frank Hinkey and The Bloody Corner, had seen too many upsets, especially in traditional games.

The 1942 season was more than ample evidence of the truth of his beliefs.

Those Khaki Uniforms

British soldiers in India during their war with the Sikhs, 1848-49, felt too conspicuous in their white campaign uniforms. By dipping them in muddy water they changed them from white to—the Sikhs had a word for it—khaki. The United States quartermaster general, now buying scores of millions of yards of khaki cloth for uniforms, specifies a khaki dye that results from blending many dye shades.

Nature designed the kidneys to do a marvelous job. Their task is to keep the flowing blood stream free of an excess of waste impurities. The act of living—life itself—is constantly producing waste matter the kidneys must remove from the blood if good health is to endure.
When the kidneys fail to function as Nature intended, there is retention of waste that may cause backache, dizziness. One may suffer nagging headache, persistent headaches, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel tired, nervous, all worn out.

Nazis Face Serious Retreats in Russia Following New Major Gains by Soviet; U. S. Planes Smash Jap Ships at Rabaul; Gen. Clark Commands Africa Fifth Army

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysis and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

President Roosevelt examines a huge globe of the world, which was presented to him by the army. The globe, which is 50 inches in diameter, shows in considerable detail strategic areas of the earth's surface. It occupies a prominent place in the President's office in the White House.

SIGNIFICANCE:
Of Russia's Drive

While the world marveled at the military might of the Russians which was able to push the Nazis back all along the battle front the full significance of this winter campaign was overlooked by many. Should the offensive maintain its momentum of the early days of the new year Hitler's troops faced the definite prospect of retiring to lines they held in the last World war.

On both ends of the long fighting front the Russians were scoring major triumphs. In the north, the vital German-held supply base and rail center of Velikie Luki had fallen to the Soviet army. (Velikie Luki is only 200 miles from East Prussia.) In this sector the big threat was to the Nazis massed before Leningrad, because if the Russians pushed beyond Velikie Luki toward that stronghold all the Germans in the area would be cut off from supplies. Further extending the picture, military experts foresaw the necessary evacuation of Estonia and northern Latvia.

Results

But while much of this campaign in the north was speculation, Russian might had already dealt a series of crushing blows to the Germans massed in front of Stalingrad and in the Caucasus. Success here came as the result of a bold strategic move on the part of Josef Stalin and General Zhukoff. For when these Russian leaders decided that Germany had about spent her might in the all-out effort to capture Stalingrad they unleashed a counter-offensive directly before the city. Soon they learned that the Germans had few reserves between the Volga and the Don rivers. Thus the Russians took heart and pushed westward toward the all-important city of Rostov.

Capture of Rostov would mean the entrapment of a million Nazis in the Caucasus. Hitler realized this and started a general movement of his troops in that sector. But again the Russians attacked and were successful in capturing many important points while driving the Nazis ever backward from their last year's goal—the oil fields of Grozny and Baku.

NEW SPIRIT:
On Capitol Hill

Over were the colorful opening sessions of the new 78th congress and the national legislators had settled down to the tough job ahead. Yet a new spirit—some observers called it a "spirit of Independence"—hung over Capitol Hill.

On the biggest objective of all—the winning of the war—there was unity between the two parties. There, however, unity ended.

Support of the administration in most of its home policies would no doubt be forthcoming from the Democratic side of both houses but there would be no quick "write your own ticket" edicts of power to the executive branch. Like their Republican brethren, the Democrats were in a "show me" mood as far as domestic programs were concerned.

So small was the control of the Democratic party that anything could and more than likely would happen. Republicans had their eyes on 1944 and were pledged to strictly uphold the position of an opposition party on matters affecting the home front.

SOUTH PACIFIC:
Allied Successes

Although the Allies won the battle of Buna, clearing that New Guinea area of Jap troops, activities in the South Pacific showed no signs of lessening. Jap resistance continued unabated in other areas.

Later communiques from General MacArthur's headquarters told of a successful heavy bombing attack upon a strong Japanese naval concentration at Rabaul, New Britain. Flying over the target, Flying Fortresses and Liberators scored direct hits with 1,000 pound bombs on eight Jap merchantmen and supply vessels. Another 1,000 pounder smashed into a destroyer tender, alongside which a destroyer was tied. All were left sinking or burning.

A government official in Melbourne, Australia, announced that the largest armada of transports, supply vessels and warships yet sent by Japan into the Southwest Pacific was being assembled at various points under cover of bad weather. The concentration meant one of three things, he said: 1. An attempt to retake Henderson airfield on Guadalcanal. 2. An effort to reinforce Jap units at Sanananda point in New Guinea. 3. An effort to strengthen Jap defensive positions in the entire area.

Guadalcanal

Encouraging news came from Guadalcanal island when American troops took from the Japanese important heights flanking the southwestern rim of the United States position in that sector. It was thought the advance may have signalized the beginning of a campaign to drive the enemy out of artillery range of the Solomon island air field. Six Jap counterattacks were repulsed with a loss of 150 enemy dead.

AFRICA FIFTH ARMY:
Gen. Clark in Command

Another step in the organization of huge Allied forces for the assault on Tunis and Bizerte in North Africa was made with the announcement that the United States fifth army has been activated and Lieut. Gen. Mark W. Clark placed in command of the new force.

General Clark, 46, is the hero who, traveling by submarine to North Africa three weeks before the Allied landings, held a secret rendezvous with French officers.

The announcement indicated that a large United States army of several divisions has been organized through its rank and is ready to fight alongside Lieut. Gen. K. A. N. Anderson's first army in Tunisia. The size of the army was not indicated. It may mean a force of as few as two or three divisions, although it may reach 10 or 12 divisions.

Meanwhile the United States army air force struck strong blows in support of French and American ground forces in central Tunisia. Railroad yards were bombed at Kairouan and other targets were smashed at Cherichera, five miles northeast of Foundouk.

Bad weather continued to keep the opposing armies comparatively inactive in the north. Observers said that French troops, with a complete disregard for politics and ancient equipment, are fighting with great gallantry in central and southern Tunisia.

LORD HALIFAX ENTERTAINS

Dignified Viscount Halifax, British ambassador and former foreign minister of Great Britain, was entertaining at dinner at the British embassy. The time had come for his guests to go into dinner, but they were so busily engaged in conversation that it was difficult for the ambassador to attract their attention.

"How shall we do this?" he appealed to delightful Mrs. Thurman Arnold, wife of the justice department's famous trust-buster.

"Down in Missouri where I come from," she suggested, "we sing out, 'Come and get it!'"

So his lordship sang out to his assembled guests:

TRUMAN COMMITTEE FIGHT

A hot fight is shaping up in the senate over continuation of the Truman committee.

Friends of Jesse Jones, WPB boss Donald Nelson and others who have been criticized by the committee have quietly been lining up support in the senate to force a termination of the Truman investigation after the next session of congress convenes.

Enemies of the committee thought they won a great victory when the senate voted, two days before adjournment, to abolish all of its investigating committees on January 31, 1943.

However, far-sighted Senator Scott Lucas of Illinois, chairman of the senate audit and control committee, who handled this legislation, agreed privately with Senator Harry S. Truman of Missouri that his committee will get more funds.

Furthermore, one of the first things the Truman probers will examine when the next congress convenes will be the administration and necessity of nation-wide gasoline rationing.

PASS THE AMMUNITION

It hasn't been officially announced yet, but when Madame Chiang Kai-shek, "Generalissimistress of China" emerges from the hospital, she plans to come to Washington and camp at the White House until she has persuaded FDR to pass the ammunition.

Madame Chiang is a very persuasive person. She combines oriental charm with a Wellesley education. Unquestionably she will become China's "ambassador-in-effect" in Washington. Already Chinese Ambassador Wei is wondering whether he or Madame Chiang really represents the Chinese government.

But while there may be some doubt on that, there is absolutely no doubt that China wants more planes and wants them quickly. This time, it is not the appeal of a desperate people, but of a people ready to take the offensive. Chinese military experts declare that they could do more damage to Japan with one plane than British and Americans could do with two in the Solomons or the East Indies.

Reason is that they can engage the enemy in great numbers, for all eastern China is occupied by Japan, whereas her forces in the Pacific are scattered from island to island.

Immediate objective of the Chinese drive—if they are allowed to make it—will be Hankow.

Madame Chiang will argue that capture of Hankow would disorganize the entire transportation system by which the Japanese ship supplies overland to Indo-China and Burma.

1944 Is Too Late.

Madame Chiang also has another powerful argument up her sleeve—that 1944 will be too late. The schedule now adopted by the United Nations high command to knock off Hitler first and then turn on Hirohito in 1944, is regarded by the Chinese as a dangerous and unsound strategy.

Month by month, the Japanese are consolidating. They are bringing together the rubber, tin, and oil of the East Indies, with the iron and coal of north China, and welding an industrial system which will be able to run indefinitely. No longer will scrap iron be necessary from the outside world.

If given time, Madame Chiang will argue, the Japs will complete the gaps in the rail lines between Singapore and China, and thus have an overland transportation route, safe from submarines. Then no matter how strong the British and American navies, they will be no more able to dent Jap supply lines than the Japs can dent our communications between San Francisco and New York.

That roughly is the powerful argument Madame Chiang Kai-shek will make.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

In Calcutta wealthy natives with cars invariably paint their tires red because of the superstition that this will obviate motor trouble.

The rubber tapped at rubber farm in Brazil lives partly off the forest but ranges in search of wild rubber. A shotgun and machete are his traditional equipment.

Superstitious negroes of Georgia believe that the best cure for rheumatism is to sleep with an old tire around the waist.

When dead tires are mis-mated, the longer tire carries most of the load, wears off its tread abnormally and fails early due to the generation of excess heat in its cord carcass.

It is estimated that the average tire loses 25 per cent of its weight in use and yields about ⅔ of its original weight in reclaimed rubber.

Potash— a MAJOR in the FOOD FRONT
Long recognized as one of the three essential plant foods, potash has moved up to the front line in America's food front. Years of official experimental work have clearly demonstrated that ample supplies and reserves of potash must be available in the soil to insure large yields of good quality crops.
Such production is now vitally important to maintain our armed as well as civilian forces. The American Potash Industry has been developed, expanded, and is now geared to take the place demanded of it by the National emergency.

Don't Forget The Poll Taxes

The year 1943 is the "big" year in Mississippi politics for this is the year we elect the supervisors, sheriffs, chancery clerks, and governor, given in order of their importance.

The voters have finally learned that hey must have TWO poll tax receipts, one dated on or before February 1, 1942, and the other dated on or before February 1, 1943 in order to be able to vote in the August primaries.

You are therefore urged to see that your poll tax is paid on or before February 1st. I have been advised that a surprising few people have so far paid their poll taxes at the sheriff's office. Only two weeks remain in which to pay these taxes.

Get busy or you cannot vote AGAINST somebody in August.

Too Much Waste

Too much waste is going on not only in the alphabetical organizations, but in the military establishment. Anyone with eyes to see can see the tremendous waste going on right under our noses; high salaried officers driving heavy trucks to town to get a 35 cent mop; enlisted men and officers alike just "marking time"; wasting not only vast sums of money in idle doings, but wasting something more precious—man hours of work.

I know one negro girl, working at the camp and being paid, according to her statement $90.00 per month with the privilege of getting a three-course dinner for 25 cents. Her duties are picking up and straightening and sweeping nurses' quarters. I know positively that this girl, who, by the way, was born on my plantation, hardly knew how to get in out of a heavy rain. She was not even a good field hand. She is dumber than the Spynix of Egypt. Maybe I am dumb, too, for I do not know whether Spynix is spelled right.

I agree that nothing is too good for the men in the "fox holes of Bataan" or in the jungles of New Guinea; but I sometimes think that things are somewhat too good for the thousands and millions of men, officers and enlisted men alike, who are more or less "gold bricking" their way through the war.

I know that I was a pretty fair gold-bricker in the last war, but the gold-brickers of the present war, with about twice the pay, better food, and better equipment, could teach me a lot of tricks in the ancient art of "soldiering."

Bicycles On Sidewalks, Dangerous

I wonder if the authorities are going to wait until some aged person is knocked down and sustains a broken hip by a kid riding a bicycle before the law forbidding the use of sidewalks for bicyclists is enforced.

My observation is that, while boys of both races use the sidewalks for bicycle riding, the negro boys are the worse offenders.

Personally I have barely averted collision with a moving bicycle a number of times.

I think something should be done about it

Hold Off Political Announcements

It is my candid opinion that, due to the stress of the times, it would be much better on the candidates and on the general public, which certainly ought to have plenty to do, for candidates to postpone their announcements for public office until, say, April 1.

The men already in office who are contemplating seeking reelection, should have plenty to do instead of shelling the hillsides and the sloughs with barrages of political thunder. The men, not now in public office, who contemplate seeking election, should be busy with some sort of business looking to the early finish of the war whatever field they may operate in. The voters themselves, too, will get tired of candidates pestering them, if the candidates start too early. The people generally should be engaged in something more important than the discussion of political issues.

Over in Calhoun county, we note that a number of men have already announced for public office. Maybe the Calhounites have nothing else to engage their energies and their attention, but Grenada County people—who have an army camp and an army air base within their county—have other things to do.

Let's have a sort of gentleman's agreement to "hold fire" until, say, April 1.

What applies to county and district candidates also applies to candidates for State offices.

Forget It

The Board of Mayor and Aldermen might as well put the proposal to change the City Charter to permit the Board to appoint the City Marshal and the City Clerk, into moth balls and not call an election on the subject.

At the meeting Monday night a petition containing about 300 names was filed with the Board. This petition asked that the subject be submitted to the people. While it is left to the City Election Commission to determine whether the petition contained 20 percent of the qualified voters, it is quite apparent that it does contain that many. The Board is, therefore, faced with two alternatives, viz: calling an election, or filing the proposal in the stove. The latter is the easiest and best method.

This matter has come up three times to my knowledge in recent years. Every time it is killed. If an election IS called a majority of THOSE QUALIFIED TO VOTE must go to the polls and vote in the affirmative, and this will never happen. It would be hardly possible to get a majority of the qualified voters to come to the City Hall and hear John the Baptist preach again, unless, of course, a barbecue was held in connection therewith.

Gentlemen of the Board, you might as well forget it.

Pay As You Earn

The present plan before Congress of "paying as you earn" and deferring to some later date the payment of the federal income taxes due in March, 1943, seems to be logical and sensible.

If tax gathering is to be converted to the "pay as you earn" from "pay after you earned," there must inevitably be a doubling up of taxes to be paid in 1943, or the 1942 taxes due in 1943 must be forgotten for the time being, otherwise many small businesses will be closed up.

Many of us know individuals who cannot pay the income taxes due in March, and there will be no way to collect them—not because the individual did not make a bunch of money, but because he spent it as he made it. Many common laborers, making 40 cents an hour, and subject to a considerable income tax, will not have ten cents to pay federal taxes with in March, 1943, and there is no way to get blood from a turnip. Thousands of those who made $1.00 and up an hour are in the same shape. By and large, the ones who made the EASY money and who WOULD pay stiff taxes on their unprecedented earnings, will be in default; while the small business housed in a brick building, cannot escape paying on the meager earnings he made the HARD way.

Deferring these taxes will help the man—the little fellow—who needs help most. God knows this whole war economy is rigged to "get" the small fellow. Some government agency made a public statement that 400,000 would have to close in 1943 unless relief was forthcoming.

The "pay as you earn" scheme of collecting taxes is a good one anyway. Why should this generation, which is responsible for the war and the huge debt incident thereto, pass on to unborn generations the burdens which these unborn generations were in no way responsible for?

BEAUTIFUL TEA GIVEN BY ALL SAINTS AUXILIARY

The handsome Colonial home of Mrs. John King on Main Street was the scene Monday afternoon of a beautifully planned tea from three-thirty to five-thirty. The occasion having been inspired by the local Auxiliary members of All Saints Episcopal Church desire to extend a courtesy and welcome to the many new citizens, members of Episcopal Church, who are now residing in Grenada or in near by towns.

The guests were greeted at the door by Mrs. Whyte Whitaker, Miss Robbie Doak, and Mrs. King escorted them to the guest room where they left their coats and Miss Juliette Doak and Mrs. L. J. Doak introduced the newly arrived guests to the group of local church women in the living room. Here Mrs. C. C. Cathey and Miss Eloise Wilkins assisted in receiving.

Mrs. C. S. Liles and Mrs. L. J. Doak presided in the dining room. Mrs. Liles poured tea and later was assisted by Mrs. Cathey.

The ladies assisting the hostess were attired in becoming formal frocks. The occasion was so enjoyed by all, it was pronounced one of the loveliest teas ever enjoyed by the Auxiliary. The home with its beautiful furnishings was modestly decorated with potted plants in bloom and the guests were free to wander about the lovely rooms filled with choice pieces of furniture, many of them beautifully preserved antiques.

The dining table was draped with white lace and the exquisite floral centerpiece, a full blossomed cyclamen of lovely rose tone color, was placed on a slightly elevated reflector. Graceful sprays of ivy were added to the decoration. Trays of canapes, chicken salad sandwiches and cookies were placed at intervals on the table and salted nuts were served in silver holders. Tea with spiced lemon was served by Mrs. Liles and the guests served themselves from the trays.

Besides the twenty odd local members to enjoy the occasion the following list includes the names of the honor guests:

Mesdames Freedburg, Travis, Lipscomb, McCoy, Dawson, Shoate, Sammes, Bessie, John Wade, Robert Harris, H. S. Thomas, and Mrs. Freeman, of Greenwood, guest of her niece, Mrs. Charlie Crenshaw.

Schooling Submariners

Submarine work is unglamorous, dangerous and hard, but there is never any lack of volunteers to man the "pig boats" that are giving such a grand account of themselves in the world's seven seas. Underseas sailors must be given highly specialized training before they even set foot aboard a submarine. At the U. S. navy submarine school in New London, Conn., they are given this training. The school teaches the men not only the operations of an underseas craft and her weapons, but also the technique of escape from disabled craft on the ocean floor. These photos show various phases in the training of Uncle Sam's underwater sailors.

Picture at top shows submarine students working with the Momsen lung in the 100-foot tank at the navy submarine school. Guided by the rope attached to a large cork float, the students rise slowly from the 100-foot level in about two minutes, breathing naturally on the way up and gradually becoming accustomed to lessening pressure. Lung is named for Commander C. B. Momsen, USN, who invented it.

Right: Here you see a class in session. There is no inattention in classes here, for a little thing unlearned may mean the student's life later on.

Technique of escape from a disabled submarine is the same as diving up. In circle at left an instructor sees that the adjustment of the Momsen lung on one of his students is correct, as the man prepares to enter tower for 100-foot rise.

BELL DESCENT . . . Submarine students and instructor (left) about to descend to the 12-foot level in an open-bottom diving bell. From this level they will rise to the surface with their Momsen lungs. Descent is gradually increased until the 100-foot level is attained.

TO YOUR Good Health

KIDNEY STONES

A patient consulted a physician for a pain in the region of the appendix. As the appendix had been removed, the physician told the patient that the pain was likely due to adhesions following the appendix operation. However, to the surprise of the physician X-rays showed a large stone in the kidney and that kidney stone was removed.

Dr. Barton

It was because the pain was in the appendix region and there was no pain in the back or pain following the course of the tube carrying urine from kidney to bladder, that caused the physician to mistake kidney stone for adhesions. Thanks to the X-rays the removal of the kidney stone brought complete relief from pain.

The above, however, is an "exceptional" case as most cases of kidney stone that cause symptoms can be recognized.

Dr. Charles Pierre-Mathe, San Francisco, director of the department of urology, St. Mary's hospital in "Clinical Medicine" says:

"A sudden, severe pain in the small of the back or abdomen which radiates to the groin should be looked on with suspicion by the attending physician. All patients suffering from kidney stones have red blood cells in the urine which can be detected by making a microscopic examination. I have never seen a patient suffering with kidney stone whose urine did not show red blood cells under the microscope. In many patients, crystals, usually of the variety found in the stone present, are encountered.

While the family physician with the aid of X-rays, microscopic examination of urine, use of dyes, can locate the position and composition of the stone or stones, Dr. Mathe advises, and "most physicians will agree, that a genito-urinary specialist—urologist—should be called into consultation in these cases. The urologist will carry out a complete examination including cystoscopy—instrument with lamps and mirror—use of a catheter up into ureters (the two tubes carrying urine from kidneys to bladder), study of the amount of urine coming from each kidney, and a complete study of the urines collected from kidneys and bladder.

After removal of stone or stones, they are examined to find composition and nature or organisms present so that the proper diet and antiseptics can be used to try to prevent the formation of more stones.

Diabetic Coma And Insulin Shock

Some months ago a moving picture showed the inside of a hospital in which a patient was undergoing diabetic coma. The floor nurse had rushed for the intern on duty, and on arrival the young physician injected insulin and ordered salt solution. The physician in charge of the case when told about the patient's symptoms was furious, and told the young intern that the patient was suffering from insulin shocks, too much insulin, and the patient's life was endangered.

The young intern suggested that they both take a look at the patient and he was found to be in a normal condition.

The point of the story of the picture does not concern us. However, there are now so many diabetics, all of whom know how to treat themselves when at home or at work, who may be placed in strange surroundings when they are suffering with diabetic coma (acidosis) or with insulin shocks. The treatment is very simple in either case, but, as the two conditions are exactly opposite in character, the treatment for each case is different.

What is diabetic coma and what is insulin shock? How can one tell the difference if a known diabetic is found unconscious?

Diabetic coma is a condition brought on by overeating—that is, the patient himself may eat too much food—or the body, due to an overactive thyroid gland or infection which eats or burns up the food too rapidly. Treatment is therefore by insulin injection.

Insulin shock or reaction is due to too much insulin, to taking too little food after insulin has been taken, or taking too much exercise and using up the food eaten too soon. The treatment is to give some starch or sugar at once.

HEALTH BRIEFS

To prevent psittacosis, parrot fever, government authorities in 1932 adopted U. S. Interstate Quarantine Regulations. These regulations recommended that every interstate shipment of parrots, love birds, and parrakeets be accompanied by a certificate from the proper health authorities. This certificate stated that: "The bird or birds in the shipment have come from distributing establishments free from infection."

ON THE HOME FRONT with RUTH WYETH SPEARS

NEWSPAPERS BOUND TIGHTLY WITH MUSLIN STRIPS ARE PADDED WITH COTTON BATTING AND THEN COVERED TO MAKE STIFF BACK CUSHIONS FOR THE COUCH
A SECOND STITCHING MAKES A FINISH FOR CUT SIDE OF SEAMS

THIS is the story of an old couch that became glamorous and played a conspicuous part in a charming sunny living room. The transformation started with a heavy cotton twill fabric in a soft tan tone to match the background color of the hooked rug that you see in front of the couch. It was decided not to use any contrasting trimming but to accent the clean-cut box-like edges outlining the couch pad and cushions with a second seam on the outside, as shown at the right. Couch cover and cushions used 9¼ yards of the 36-inch-wide goods.

When the smartly tailored cover was completed it was fastened firmly in place with zippers of the type that come apart at the bottom—one side being stitched to the seam allowance of the cover and the other sewn to the couch pad. Next came the stiff cushions to stand up at the back. These were made with an inside core of newspapers tightly bound together with muslin bands and then padded with cotton batting, as shown.

NOTE: Directions for making the hooked rug in this sketch may be found on page 14 of your copy of Book 5. Directions for making the spool table at the left of this sketch are also in that book. The velvet covered frames for the pictures over the couch are in Book 6, which also contains a description of the series of booklets prepared by Mrs. Spears as a service to our readers. Address:

Vital to Liberty
Conserve its Use

The New Year, 1943, is "the end of the beginning." A greater burden of toil and conflict lies ahead. And while America's sons fight in desert and jungle, telephone communication lines at home will carry an ever-increasing load of calls vital to Victory.

Telephone materials are still going to battle in the form of guns and shells. So, to get the most out of our present equipment, we will continue to need your help in keeping long distance lines clear of all but necessary calls. And remember, the greater the distance you talk, the greater the chance of your call getting in the way of important war calls.

We are most grateful for the patriotic response during 1942, to our requests for voluntary reduction of unnecessary long distance calls. It helped us provide the services so badly needed in those critical times.

For the "duration," we can continue to best serve the telephone needs of all by serving our country first.
